social "stunts" last week. We ran the gamut, from the Fowler ball on Monday night, which was "the" ball of the winter and of many winters, through a long list of teas, luncheons and what not, to the small and early given on Saturday night by Mrs. Theodore Girard Mele: for her two visiting nieces. Everybody appears to have enjoyed the list. This giving over most of the entertaining to the matrice which has noticeably characterized the season, has been productive of more general good spirits. I believe, than for many a season in the past. They took charge early and are assuming all the managerial duties; and not in years have there been so many genuinely pleasant functions, seven backers or four surfered seven severe shocks a short time ago, when eards were sent out by one of the most popular and well-known hostesses in the West End. The seven were not "sufficiently urged." There was an auxiliary turning over of mail on the day that some 300 society folk re-

Five of this for the conve inducky num-her took the little done and held their peace. But the remaining two were not so wary. Hastily drawing forward their most elegant, gream-land stationary they both elegant, cream-laid stationary they both wrote epistles of exponentiation somewhat Rather a facer, ch? It seems that the unlucky seven last year, when Mrs. Hostess gave a big reception at one of the clubs, did not deign thereafter to pay their party calls in due and proper fashion. In no way, shape or form, did they ever convey to the lady that they had enjoyed her hospitality and were duly grateful. They were simply lax and forgetful, like hundreds of others. Now, as you very well know, most women who entertain have this difficulty to confront, but denoing men are ever rara aves, and hostesses, invariably lenient. So the men are forgiven again and again, end men are forgiven again and again, end go right on committing the same old of-fense, season after season, until they marry and are then dragged out by their wives to do the proper amount of visit paying. No remody will ever be found for this by No remany will ever be found for this by no means unimportant evil until the hos-tesses rise on masse and put it down. They have the matter entirely in their own hands. And until other entertainers show the same amount of spirit as the lady of my story, the evil will continue to hold its own.

Charity compels me to draw a chiffon covering over the embarrassment of the two gentlemen who wrote and asked "why?"

The hostess naturally felt considerably disturbed herself, to be obliged to adopt such sirenuous measures; but her discomfiture was as naught compared to that which fell to the lot of the two writers when they read her replies. But that they deserved the lesson, you will admit. Such effrontery the lesson, you will admit. Such effortery the lesson that which fell the walls four deep, which, of course, insured plenty of partners. The standard many that were deep, which, of course, insured plenty of partners. The New Year's Eve subscription ball was altogether such a joyous event that another will be given in February, and along the same lines of early hours, no deccoterie are felicitating themselves on the success of their hops, begun in December. The last, a week ago, was especially jolly: perhaps all the more so because the number of dancers was by no means large; and everypody knew everybody else exceedingly

I have the authority of Mrs. James Law-rence Biair for the statement that the Fow-ler ball, given last Monday night at the 8t. Louis Ciub, was by long odds the handsomest function of its kind ever of-fered to the Vanity Fair of St. Louis. And Mrs. Blair is no Incompetent Judge.

Mire. Blair is no incompetent judge. Hundreds of American beauty roses, with the longest of stems, were planted all the way up the staircase and gayly nodded their idea, and she tells me, entre nous, that she actually dreamed of it a week before the ball and had the florist carry out the scheme exactly as it appeared to her in slumberland. The beliroom looked so pret-ty, with a big screen of smilax and white hyacinths to shut out the musicians from Every woman there were a new frock, or, at least, if any were old they were so freshened as to be quite unrecognizable. freshened as to be quite unrecognizable. Miss Whitaker, in palest of green tissue, and Miss Collins, in white embroidered net with quantities of old Val lace, were naturally the observed ones of the svening. Tremendously nice of Mrs. Fowler to give the dance for these two and their friends. I was greatly amused to read somewhere that both the girls are debutantes. Emma Whitaker, Florence West, Janet Lee, Annie Kennard, now Mrs. "Jamie' Brookmire, and Edith Collins all came out together and had a beautiful time their first season.

meet, and that is about the extent of their acquaintance.

Yet the first zirl whom I met at Maude Wells's luncheon last week announced the engagement as settled and told me positively that Miss B.— was having her trousseau lingeris made at a certain convent because, forsooth, "she happened to meet her coming away from there only the day before"!

Paint Club's spread on Thursday night spoke of the marriage in most casual terms as being a thing already arranged, and asked me if I knew the date.

Yet everywhere I go I am questioned as to what I think of the engagement, and if it is true that he has given her a diamond nearly as the second of the seco riding horse, and heaven only knows what

Again, let me rise to remark that there is not a word of truth in the story, and I think there never will be.

With every clubwoman riding her own pet hobby at Kansas City last week, there ap-peared to be small chance of any settlement as regards the exact form the clubwomen's Louisiana Purchase memorial is to take. The suggestions range from model tenement-houses to "altruistic" fountains with filter attachment.
